A Word from Father...

Dear Friends,

Well, as you probably know well, "primary season" is finally winding down. Just a few more votes across the country and we'll have this first part of Election 2016 in the bag. The GOP already has its "presumptive nominee"; the Demos are not far behind. The big question everyone is asking is if Act Two, the lead-up to the November general election, will be as toxic as the primary season has been. I am presuming the answer to that question is that it will be even worse and so I am thinking of making up for the inadequacies in my recent Lenten penitential practices by spending the next five-plus months NOT watching the TV and limiting my access to the Internet to work and family-related matters. I'll probably fail more often than not because life now is so intertwined with these technologies that bring us the best and worst of humanity's news, but maybe, just maybe, I can at least limit a bit my exposure to the political version of the Zika virus.

It shouldn't be this way. We all know that. It didn't used to be this way. We all know that, too. Even in the era of Nixonian dirty tricks, it wasn't as awful as it is now. Even Richard Nixon had a modicum of dignity about him when in public.

So what to do? I mean, what to do as Catholics? Is turning off the TV, not paying attention, or even not voting appropriate responses for us as people of faith as well as citizens of this country? Pope Francis had these words on the topic:

"We need to participate for the common good. Sometimes we hear: a good Catholic is not interested in politics. This is not true: good Catholics immerse themselves in politics by offering the best of themselves so that the leader can govern." (9/16/13)

Isolating ourselves from the most toxic and infantile elements of the upcoming campaigns to preserve our sanity and keep us from sinking into ever deeper swamp of cynicism is not enough. We, precisely as people of faith, and even more precisely as Christians, and yet even more precisely as Catholics, means we also are required to proclaim in word and deed the foundational values of Jesus' Gospel even in the world of politics and government. We must maturely apply those values as best we are able to the issues of the day, keep our discussions over differences respectful and dignified by attentive listening and careful responding, and promote in word and deed the paramount political value: the common good.

Once again, that great political commentator in Rome, Pope Francis, has this to say:

"To believe that the Holy Spirit is at work in everyone means realizing that he seeks to penetrate every human situation and all social bonds. . . . Accepting the first proclamation, which invites us to receive God's love and to love him in return with the very love which is his gift, brings forth in our lives and actions a primary and fundamental response: to desire, seek and protect the good of others." (Joy of the Gospel, #178)

Keeping that in mind, feel free now to join me in turning off the TV...

Fr. Kevin
